STATEMENT OF OBLIGOR’S RIGHTS, REMEDIES, AND RESPONSIBILITIES IN REGARD TO AN INCOME DEDUCTION ORDER

You are hereby advised that you have the following rights, remedies, and responsibilities in regard to the income deduction order (IDO) issued pursuant to O.C.G.A. §19-6-32.

1. Your employer may deduct up to $25 the first time a deduction is made and up to $3 each subsequent time to cover administrative costs. You may also be responsible for paying interest at the current legal rate on any unpaid amounts that accrue.
2. The IDO states that $_____ will be withheld from each pay period until the arrearage has been paid in full. The total amount that will be deducted each pay period thereafter is $_____. The amounts deducted may not be in excess of that allowed under Section 303(b) of the federal Consumer Credit Protection Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1673(b), as amended (50 percent of disposable income where there is a second family being supported, 60 percent where there is no second family being supported, and an additional 5 percent of either limit if the arrearage is equal to 12 weeks or more in support payments).
3. The income deduction order applies to current and future employers and periods of employment.
4. The payor of your income will be given a copy of the IDO requiring deductions to be initiated against your income in payment of your child support obligation.
5. You may contest enforcement of the income deduction order only on the basis of mistaken identity or a mistake regarding the amount of support or arrearage owed. The court, referee, or administrative law judge after due notice to all parties shall hear the matter within 30 days after the application is filed and shall not extend the time for hearing unless good cause for a later date is found by the court, in which event the time for a hearing may be extended for up to 30 days. The court, referee, or administrative law judge shall enter an order resolving the matter within ten days after the hearing.
6. You are required to notify the obligee in writing of any change in your address or any change in your employer or your employer’s address.
